I joined the proud boys after years of Antifa destroy my neighborhood in Los Angeles, CA. I saw a state full of liberals fighting for something they had no idea about. I watched innocent, hard working American liberties being taken from them by our government while our democratic leaders turned an eye. I saw the police begin to be overtaken by the Antifa mob and the media destroying the reputation of good police officers. I saw innocent people beat up in the streets based off of their skin color I saw so much. It killed me, it broke my heart. It made me pissed off. I needed an outlet. Too many of my friends and family members were all talk and no show. Then I found the Proud Boys. This group stood for American values, the values I was raised up with. To me the Proud Boys are a group of men no different than the first colonials. We formed and now we protect our country. If the police won't protect our citizens, then we will. I am honored to be a Proud Boy representing the great USA.

He is has two accounts on Instagram which is what allowed us to verify his identity and occupation as a substance abuse counselor

In addition to NYC Gober has ties to LA where he used to own a rehab clinic.

Gober has a profile in @PsychToday and what we found disturbing is the list of people he purports to want to help

And than contrast that with the fact that he is a member of a hate group with ties to neo-Nazis and posts transphobic content on his Parler account

People in DC need to be aware as it appears that the self described "Antifa Killa" has plans to be at the "Proud Boy" fash rally on the 12th

12/ One of the best things out of @ericries's Lean Startup is the concept of "vanity metrics" - unimportant, inflated metrics that don't have much to do with business value. But the effects of using them are different when you're a startup versus a big co.

13/ For big, established companies, focusing on vanity metrics is silly but not harmful. Everyone's thrown up a huge number to celebrate for an offsite. I get it. But for startups who are pre-product/market fit, it can lead down a path towards

Maybe if you a pic of someone on your side do something that you don't agree with maybe don't blast it out on the interweb.

Maybe you can try to reach out to them in good faith and a willingness to help.

Maybe they are out doing the best they can with what they know and what they have and it is probably disheartening for them to log on and see "comrades" shitting on them
